God had spent the better part of eternity tormenting and mocking Lucifer. Dejected, friendless, and lacking the courage to even speak to a hot dog vendor, Lucifer (or as God unaffectionately calls him, Lucy) spent his days wallowing and agreeing to these bets under duress. When Paul overhears God call Lucifer a fig (don't ask), he decides to help Lucifer win the latest unwinnable bet. In typical lacktivist fashion, they ignore the consequences of their actions and are oblivious to the mayhem they cause while trying to win.
